Claiming a tax deduction

> You may be able to claim a tax deduction on personal super contributions if you are a current smartMonday member under age 67, or between age 67 and 74 and meet the work test or qualify for the work test exemption. For more information about eligibility, see the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) website at ato.gov.au or call us.

> When deciding whether to claim a tax deduction for super contributions, you should consider whether you will exceed your concessional contribution caps. Contributions for which you claim a tax deduction will count toward your annual cap. You should also consider whether it will affect your eligibility for the Government's super co-contribution. For more information, see the Australian Tax Office (ATO) website ato.gov.au.

> If you withdraw or transfer a part of your super account balance it may reduce the amount you can claim as a tax deduction. If you had made withdrawals during the year, you may wish to seek advice on determining the correct amount to claim as a tax deduction. The ATO website provides guidance on this subject.

> You can only make one claim per financial year for tax deductions for personal contributions and you must make your claim before you file your tax return for that year.

> If any of your contributions during the year have been used to commence a retirement pension or transition-to-retirement pension, you won't be able to claim a tax deduction on those contributions.

> If you are intending to split part or all of your contributions with your spouse and you want to claim a tax deduction on those contributions, you must provide your Notice of intent form before submitting your application to split contributions.

> You can only claim a deduction once the Fund has acknowledged your Notice of intent to claim a tax deduction in writing.

Changing a previous notice to claim a tax deduction

> You can use this form to reduce an amount claimed as a tax deduction only if you have submitted a previous Notice of intent to claim a tax deduction form to the Fund for that same period.

> You cannot increase the amount you have claimed as a tax deduction in the Fund.

> You can reduce the amount you have claimed previously as a tax deduction only if you have not lodged your tax return for the relevant financial year or if the ATO has disallowed a previous claim you have made.
